Kaukauna, WI (BizHWY) August 4, 2009 - Kaukauna, WI -- July 12, 2009 - 5:27 am - This morning, the ceo of Acute Syndicate, LLC, successfully operated a conventional gasoline combustion engine with a percentage of the fuel mixture consisting of water. Many of the variables in which this event occurred successfully are not available for print at this time. Jeffrey R. Boire indicated, "We have earned a tremendous responsibility as a result of this opportunity, to significantly reduce our demand on energy resources. Design and engineering are not perfected at this point, but a tremendous start to a new perspective on energy use."

Status of an international patent is applied for at this time. Gains include: restoring agriculture to food production, modifying rather than replacing existing technology/infrastructure, and limiting petroleum use to lubrication and synthetic materials manufacture.

Acute Syndicate, LLC began operations earlier this spring specializing in sales/marketing technique and strategic process management. Jeffrey R. Boire reveals the mission is to provide practical business insight to entrepreneurs, inventors, and business leadership teams enabling efficient and profitable sales and marketing strategies, agile change management processes, and significant stakeholder returns. "Our vision is to build long-term business relationships, provide unrelenting client-focused follow through on commitments while developing successful market endurance."
