Brand New Web-based A&D Record Software for FFL Dealers

A brand new software has been developed and released for beta testing. The ATF is becoming increasingly more strict on their audits announcing increased FFL Dealer Audits.

Gilbert, AZ (BizHWY) August 2, 2012 - With the Obama administration, audits on FFL Dealers has become more frequent and more stringent. More than 3000 FFL Dealers lost their licenses in the year of 2011.
As a response to this, many softwares have been produced to remove the human error or clerical errors from day to day activities of firearms dealers.
TTADsoftware has released a new web based software that makes sure all the forms required are filled out correctly and ATF regulations adhered to.

What may set them apart from the competition is that they do not charge for customer support, and have a significantly lower price point than any of their legitimate competition.

They will also be offering a 30 day free trial which none of their competitors are willing to do.

With no contract, a month to month charge, and a low price point, TTADsoftware is poised to take over the software market for FFL Dealers.

You can sign up for a free trial at their website.
