Inland Products celebrates 30 years of manufacturing all-American Identification Tags

Inland Products, manufacturer and distributor of high-quality identification tags celebrates 30 years as a top-quality, American manufacturer and distributor of engraved metal tags, blank tags, nameplates and metal labels.

MENIFEE, CA, USA; 5 December 2019 - Inland Products recently celebrated 30 years of business, as a manufacturer and distributor of high-quality engraved metal tags, blank tags, nameplates and metal labels.

Located in Menifee, California, Inland Products sell their blank tags in a range of materials including; stainless steel, anodized aluminum, brass, and plastic, to other companies who in turn personalize them for their own customer bases. These companies include engraving shops, sign and graphics companies, trophy and awards shops, engravable gift companies and printing businesses.

Identification tags are used in a variety of industries including, Aerospace, Building and Construction, Automotive and Marine, Electrical and Plumbing, Engineering, Oil and Gas, Solar and Wind Power, Utilities and All Branches of Government and Military and, over the past 30 years, Inland Products have done business with many major corporations including Boeing, SpaceX, Vector Aerospace, Bell Helicopter, Marathon Oil & Gas, Shell Oil Company, Valero Energy, Schlumberger, Dupont, General Electric, Apple, Microsoft, Kiewit, Caterpillar, John Deere, Subaru, Tesla, The YMCA, and even government agencies such as the DoD.

"We understand the importance of high-quality identification products that are made to last the lifetime of the item they are identifying, and this is what we always strive to achieve," said Andrew Christie of Inland Products, "Our goal is to listen to our customers and fully understand the intended use and expected conditions that the product would be exposed to and only then to determine our approach to recommending materials and processes to achieve our goals."

Metal tags are a top seller for Inland Products and have long been the most reliable method of labeling critical assets and equipment with important information. These long-lasting pieces can be used blank, engraved, stamped or custom-made in a variety of materials, alloys, sizes, and shapes.

Similarly, metal labels are another high-quality, durable product which many companies use to assist with organization or brand building. Inland Products use a process called DuraprintÂ® to create their metal labels, which deposits ink directly into the open pores of the aluminum and permanently locks the ink into the aluminum beneath the surface - leaving these products highly resistant to solvents and abrasion.

Inland Products can also produce top quality metal nameplates in stainless steel, anodized aluminum, solid brass or printed aluminum - which can be engraved, printed or customized to any requirement.

For color-coded metal tags, aluminum tags can be anodized (a process that allows the aluminum to be dyed with any color and sealed into the pores of the aluminum under a transparent sapphire hard oxidation layer), which creates a wearable and premium finish.

Inland Products take pride in producing all of their identification products in the United States using modern, state of the art manufacturing equipment and processes. Their large format, high-speed laser-engraving machines provide engraving etching at the highest quality with bold contrasting features that stand out better than any other marking method and will last for decades.
