

Veedma Introduces Free Doctor-Reviewed Men's Health Lab Analysis

Men can upload recent lab results for a personalized clinical review from a licensed doctor, with no credit card or treatment obligation.

San Francisco, CA (BizHWY) August 30, 2026 - Veedma, a preventive men's health telehealth clinic, today announced a free clinical review for men who already have recent lab results. The service gives users a personalized report from a licensed doctor, typically within 24 hours and within 48 hours on weekends and holidays.

Users can upload results from the previous 180 days at <https://veedma.com/>. No credit card or treatment commitment is required. Depending on the submitted markers, the review can cover testosterone patterns, pituitary signaling, thyroid and prolactin findings, vitamin D, iron, and metabolic markers that may affect men's health.

Each submission is evaluated alongside medical history and a structured symptom assessment. The resulting report explains observed patterns, identifies areas that may warrant follow-up, and outlines possible next steps. The free review does not guarantee a diagnosis, prescription, or treatment.

If ongoing care is clinically appropriate, Veedma offers telehealth consultations focused on hormone and fertility health. Prescriptions are issued only after a video visit and clinical review by a doctor licensed in the patient's state. Service availability varies by state.

About Veedma

Veedma is a preventive men's health telehealth clinic focused on hormone, sexual, and fertility health. Licensed doctors evaluate low testosterone, erectile dysfunction, and fertility concerns using lab results, medical history, and a structured symptom assessment. When clinically appropriate, care may prioritize treatments that support the body's own testosterone production. Prescriptions are issued only after a video visit and clinical review. Availability varies by state.
